

Safeguarding Statement

When we talk about safeguarding we mean protecting adults and children from abuse or neglect. At Bromford we work together with our customers and their communities to build a safer place for all.

We all have a duty

We are clear that safeguarding is everybody's business. Everyone shares the responsibility for safeguarding and promoting the welfare of children, young people and adults. Adopting a practical, 'don't do nothing' approach, we are committed to ensuring colleagues act appropriately and work in partnership with our customers and other organisations to ensure the safety of all.

We care

Bromford colleagues have a key safeguarding role to play. Colleagues are trained to recognise where there might be safeguarding issues, these may include:

- Physical abuse (using force to hurt someone);
- Emotional abuse (hurting someone by saying or doing things);
- Sexual abuse (non-consensual sexual contact of any kind);
- Financial abuse (stealing, defrauding or coercing someone to part with goods, property or money);
- Neglect and self-neglect (not being taken care of, or not taking care of yourself adequately);
- Discrimination (treating a person or particular group of people differently, especially in a worse way from the way in which you treat other people);
- Organisational abuse (mistreatment of people because of poor or inadequate care, support or practice).

We aim to ensure that our colleagues are knowledgeable and appropriately skilled. Supervision, monitoring and training to support colleagues' on-going awareness and responsibilities in the area of safeguarding is provided.

We do what we can

We value our customers and want to preserve the supporting and caring relationships we build with them.

As Bromford has an obligation to protect adults and children from abuse and neglect, there may be occasions where we need to share information with statutory agencies, but we would always try to talk to individuals first to see what we could do to support them.

We understand any information relating to safeguarding is sensitive, and as such comply with the Data Protection Act 1998.

Bromford Colleagues

Our rigorous recruitment procedure includes vetting candidates who work closely with customers and undertaking DBS (Disclosure and Barring Service) checks.

If an allegation against a colleague is made it will be investigated thoroughly and appropriate action taken.
